

Dr. Noel White is a geologist with more than 45 years of experience in mineral exploration, operations and project generation work worldwide. He was the Chief Geologist for former BHP, and has visited over 350 ore deposits/mines in 50 countries, including China where the first foreign joint venture in its mining industry was built up by BHP. Dr. White was a consultant to the World Bank Group on their evaluation of Asian mineral potential. He has a strong involvement with professional societies and universities worldwide, such as serving as International Exchange Lecturer in 1999 and Thayer Lindsley Lecturer in 2008 for the Society of Economic Geologists, and he was formerly VP Regional Affairs for the Society of Economic Geologists. He has authored and co-authored various publications from 1972 to present. Dr. White received a Bachelor of Science from the University of Newcastle and his PhD from the University of Tasmania.

To find out more about Dr. Noel White please click on the following link:

<http://www.asianow.ca/i/noelwhite/vitae/vitae2.html>